

Workshop Supervisors for Skills Competitions

WorldSkills 2011 is issuing a call for professionals in a range of sectors to help nurture the world's best young talent at the largest skills competition in the world.

With WorldSkills coming to London in October next year, organisers are looking for workshop supervisors to oversee a number of competitions:

- Polymechanics/Automation
- Manufacturing Team Challenge
- Mechatronics
- Metal Roofing
- Industrial Control

WorldSkills 2011 will bring together 1,000 young people from across the globe to compete in 45 skills. The event will cover 90,000 square metres at ExCeL London and attract over 250,000 visitors over four days.

Workshop supervisors will have responsibility for preparation of materials, health and safety, security and workshop upkeep and they will also support international judges as they test the competitors. Each workshop supervisor will be required to commit approximately a day a month for the next year, increasing to two or three days a month in the six months leading up to the competition and full-time for 10-12 days over the competition.
